

Revisit Lassen Peak Eruption!

Saturday Morning 9/3 - Monday Evening 9/5 (Labor Day Wknd)

On May 22, 1915, a tremendous volcanic explosion at Lassen Peak in northern California unleashed a 7-mile high mushroom cloud of hot gases and ash visible a hundred fifty miles away. A surge of superheated ash and pumice swept down the northeast flank of the volcano, destroying everything in its path.

Just over 96 years later, Troop 57 will visit the scene of this eruption and explore the volcano and its effects on the land. We'll visit a 1300-foot-long lava tube that carried lava from earlier eruptions; we'll hike the Lassen Peak trail and view the results of the most recent eruption; and we'll visit a boiling lake, bubbling mudpots, and roaring fumaroles (gas vents), that attest to the on-going volcanic activity just below the otherwise calm forest!

We'll set out on Sat. morning, Sept. 3, and camp at the Lost Creek Campground within Lassen Peak Volcanic National Park. We'll return to Palo Alto late evening of Monday, Sept 5.

This is a great opportunity to explore an area unlike any other in California--a recently active volcano considered to be the California volcano most likely to become active again!
